

HADLEY SPEAKS FOR HOME RULE IN LARGE CITIES

Governor's Speech Says Residents Should Control Police and Excise Affairs.

WILL ENFORCE LAWS

Urges That Brewers and Distillers Be Prohibited From Owning Saloons.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 11.—Gov. Hadley's inaugural address outlined the course he intended to pursue during his administration. He said in part:

"The amendments to the Constitution adopted by the people at the last general election, whereby they may initiate the enactment of laws and have referred to them, for approval or disapproval, bills passed by the Legislature, make an important change in our system of government. I undertake to say, however, that this new departure in the work of legislation will not prove to be the general panacea for public evils that its advocates have claimed for it, nor will it prove, on the other hand, to be the dangerous and cumbersome procedure that its opponents have feared it would be."

Turning to the home rule pledges of the Republican party, Mr. Hadley declared that such pledges would be faithfully kept by him.

"It has been asserted," he said, "that home rule, as the term is generally understood, means the abrogation or nullification of the laws of the State, and particularly the laws regulating dramshops in the large cities. Home rule means no such thing. As I said in my opening speech in the last campaign, 'One thing is certain in reference to this question of home rule, and that is, even if the selection of the police and excise officials is given to the people of the large cities, the laws providing for the regulation of dramshops will still remain the laws of the State until a majority of the people's representatives want them changed.' And I further expressed it as my belief that if home rule was given to the people of the large cities of the State, they will use it to enforce the law, and not to violate the law."

Reserve Power for Governor.
"It has been urged that there may arise conditions with which the local authorities, under a system of home rule, may be unable to cope, or to which they may weakly yield. This is, of course, entirely true. And it is only proper that there should be some reserved power in the chief executive by which, under such circumstances, he can properly enforce the laws of the State and protect lives and property."

"That the conduct and control of the police, excise and election affairs in the large cities by State boards has been attended with many abuses, no one conversant with the facts will deny. That the exercise of these powers of government by the people in these communities will naturally tend to bring about a more active interest and participation in political and official affairs, no one can successfully deny. And, if at any time, the right to carry on these affairs of government is neglected or abused by the people of the large cities, the State can again assume control."

"All that I have said in reference to the right of the people to manage their own police affairs, can be fairly said in reference to the right of the people to manage their own excise affairs. And while there should be in these matters, as in matters of police, be a reserved power in the Chief Executive to prevent occasional neglect or abuse of official power, the selection of these officials should originate with the people of the large cities, and not with the Governor of the State."

Brewers and Saloons.
"It is, I think, the unquestioned sentiment of the people of the State that the representatives of these interests must not be permitted to nominate and elect our public officials for their own benefit and protection. And in order that this result may be accomplished, the brewer and the distiller should, by law, be strictly confined to the business the law permits them to conduct. When the brewer or distiller, or wholesaler of intoxicating liquors is permitted, directly or indirectly, to own or operate our control dramshops, then there exists a necessary combination of power that results in the injury of the business itself and inevitably tends to pernicious and dangerous political activity."

"I recommend that you pass a law which will secure the complete separation of the brewery and the saloon, the one from the other."

"Legislation should be enacted to meet this situation, and, in my opinion, every shub, of any character, which dispenses intoxicating liquors to its members, should be required to pay a license to the State."

"While there will be no backward step on my part in the enforcement of the law, and while I favor no 'water treatment' of criminals or of the enemies of society, I believe that the first example in the observance of law should be given by those whose duty it is to enforce it."

Important to Elections.
"That there has been a marked improvement in the conduct of our elections in the large cities in the last few years should only encourage the necessity and importance of completing this important work of reform. Unless we have honest elections, we do not have a republican form of government; we do not have a government of the people, for the people and by the people."

MISSING PASTOR IN SIOVE MURDER CASE WHO TRIED TO KILL HIMSELF

REV. J. H. CARMICHAEL

Between the two political parties, as are now the judges and clerks of elections.

"The ballot that is provided for by our election laws has a tendency to prevent incurrence in voting. I am of the opinion that a change should be made in our election laws in this regard. It should be as easy for a voter to vote a mixed ticket as it is to vote a straight ticket."

Should Permit Contests.
"Fraudulent practices in connection with the primary should be clearly made a criminal offense, and in case both of the general and the primary election, provisions should be made by which a contest can be instituted and decided in the fairest, speediest and most inexpensive manner possible. For the accomplishment of this result, it is necessary that the ballot boxes should be opened and the ballots counted. And not only in contested election cases, but also in every court proceeding affecting the question of the honesty of an election, this right should exist."

"While I favor, and I believe the people of this State favor, a law which will enable the members of each political party to nominate the candidates for United States Senator, this should be done in such a way as to result in a fair expression of the people's preference for candidates for this important office. I believe that this result can be best secured by permitting the people in each legislative district to instruct their representative in the Legislature by a direct vote as to their choice for United States Senator."

"I have become convinced, and I think all who have given any thought and study to this question are convinced, that the regulation of the business of public service corporations can be most satisfactorily and successfully accomplished by a commission composed of men trained and experienced by study and investigation and qualified by natural ability for such work."

Would Regulate Monopolies.
"I am satisfied that it is the right of the State to regulate the charges and the conduct of any business which is impressed with a public use by virtue of being a monopoly. And I do not think it is of determining importance, whether the monopoly is a natural one, exists by public franchise or is the result of a combination or trust."

"While the prejudice against our system of public education have practically ceased to exist, it would be useless to deny that there does exist a prejudice against certain parts of our educational system. It has been frequently charged that too much money is being expended for the conduct of the State University. After a careful investigation of this question, I do not believe that there is any substantial basis of complaint."

He said more revenue was needed by the State, which could be obtained by taxing property at its full value, or by taxing inheritances, taxes for spirituous liquor inspection and license taxes on distillers, wholesale liquor dealers and druggists handling liquors.

Changes in Criminal Procedure.
"One particular, at least, in which the expense of government may be decreased is in the case of the expense of criminal costs," he said. "Out of the State revenues alone there is expended each biennial period nearly $500,000 for the expense incident to criminal prosecutions. While a portion of this ex-

SENATORS URGE AN INQUIRY INTO FOLK'S DEFEAT

Drunert of Montgomery Says Returns Should Be Investigated.

EVIDENCE OF FRAUD

Legislators Startled by Strange Figures—Folk Denies Report of "Deal."

From a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 11.—In an interview with a Post-Dispatch reporter today, State Senator A. L. Drunert of Montgomery County declared himself in favor of a sweeping investigation of the United States senatorial primary election.

"The returns from the Twelfth Precinct of the Twentieth Ward, St. Louis, showing that 881 votes were credited to the various candidates for Senator, whereas in that precinct there are only 371 votes, show conclusively, I believe, that the St. Louis vote was tainted with fraud," he said.

"I understand there are gross irregularities in many St. Louis precincts. This, taken with evidence already known to the public, warrants an immediate and searching inquiry on the part of the General Assembly."

Is a Democratic Leader.
Senator Drunert ranks among the Democratic leaders of the General Assembly. Previously he served a term in the House as the Representative from Montgomery County.

Senator Bradley, who already is on record in favor of the senatorial investigation, said today that the St. Louis disclosures of primary frauds ought to force prompt inquiry.

"While I am obligated to support the Democratic nominee for Senator," said he, "I do not consider myself bound to support a nomination obtained by unfair means. I got a dose of crooked election work myself at the August primary election, when I made the race for the Democratic nomination for State Auditor."

"In Kansas City, where I was strong with the union labor element, a majority of 4000 was rolled up against me. The Kansas City result cost me the nomination."

"If the senatorial contest was honest, a demonstration of the fact will aid the party. On the other hand a complete exposure of dishonest methods would emphasize that the party stands fairly on the proposition of a square election conducted without fear or favor."

Were Surprising Figures.
Another astonishing chapter in the senatorial primary election in St. Louis came to light today. In the tenth precinct of the Tenth Ward, the total number of votes cast for the Republican and Democratic candidates for Governor was 337, against 471 votes credited to the Democratic and Republican senatorial candidates.

Of the Democratic senatorial vote Folk got 90, Gehardt 35 and Stone 126. Cowherd, Democratic gubernatorial candidate, received 108, or 28 votes less than the number recorded for Stone.

It is pointed out that if the Tenth ward returns in reference to Senator are correct, 134 persons voted for Senator and scratched all other candidates for all offices, State, city and national. That this was done is considered more than highly improbable.

Folk Urged to Demand Inquiry.
Gov. Folk is being urged by Democratic members of the Legislature to ask for an investigation of the senatorial election.

The Post-Dispatch correspondent is informed on high authority that Gov. Folk is armed with testimony of startling frauds in connection with the senatorial primary. A report to the Governor from a St. Louis member of the Board of Election Commissioners tells of flagrant irregularities in all of the river wards.

Representative J. T. Mulr of Lewis County may demand an investigation of the senatorial primary on the ground that the Democratic State Committee used part of its funds to aid the Stone candidacy. W. C. Bronaugh, an agent of the State Committee, is said to have campaigned for Stone in Lewis County.

No "Deal," Says Folk.
Gov. Folk today denied a report that he and Stone are in a "deal" whereby the Stone forces will support Folk for Senator in 1911 provided the Governor keeps his hands off of the proposed senatorial investigation.

"I have not seen Senator Stone since early in November. There is no understanding of any kind between us regarding the senatorship or any other matter," he said.

Political leaders here are wondering why Folk is not encouraging the Democratic members who want the senatorial election investigated. Gov. Folk intimated today that he would discuss this matter more fully as soon as he has retired from office.

Governor Hadley's Platform Told in Inaugural Address

Gov. Hadley's plans for the discharge of his office, as set forth in his inaugural address, are:

To give the cities home rule, with the reservation of the State's right to interfere if that home rule is "neglected or abused." The home rule to apply to both police and excise matters.

To recommend laws prohibiting brewers and distillers owning interests in saloons.

To recommend a license tax on all clubs dispensing liquors to members. Not to apply "water treatment" to criminals, but to do justice.

To recommend that the election machinery be placed in the hands of bipartisan boards.

To recommend a new form of ballot.

To recommend that courts be given the right to open ballot boxes in criminal prosecutions for fraud in both primary and regular elections.

To recommend that the members of the Legislature be instructed directly by their constituents regarding a vote for United States Senator.

To urge commissions for the regulation of public service corporations and to make no discrimination between combination-made monopolies and "natural monopolies" in trust prosecutions.

To recommend more revenue by assessing property at its full value or levying certain direct taxes.

To recommend a reconstruction of the criminal laws and a change in the handling of appealed suits.

being lined with people. The two governors entered Gov. Folk's office together and promptly at the appointed hour Gov. Folk escorted his successor to the hall of the House of Representatives.

St. Joseph's train load of Republicans and their wives, with a brass band and a Hadley Presidential boom on board, reached Jefferson City at 10 o'clock.

"St. Joseph shows you," read the white badges which the delegates wore and the big banner they bore. They were a carload from Maryville, the county seat of Nodaway County. The men from this Republican stronghold were buttons showing an Indian head and the words, "I'm a Nodaway."

On the way the St. Joseph men taught the Nodaways their yell, in which, "Oh, oh" and "St. Joe" rhyme with "Hadley to the White House in 1912 will go."

The Northern Missouri contingent got to town in time to get seats or standing room in the Hall of Representatives for its members.

St. Louis Republicans, except the Federal building crowd, were late in arriving, and the Howe crowd had a hard time getting a look-in.

Marshall Morsey, Deputy, Nall, former Attorney Sager, Justice Riechman, Theodore Ramsey and a few Federal employees and Twenty-eighth Ward Republicans were the St. Louis delegation until the Howe special got in, after 11 a. m.

Otto Stifel and the German-American Alliance were on to Howe train. Howe, Stifel and Judge Gallenkamp got standing room and shook hands with all the North Missouri Republicans they could reach.

"Repeating" to Gain Entrance.
Senator Eads, chairman of the arrangements committee, found out about 11:30 that members of the House were bringing in others on the same tickets, which were not taken up. He made a speech from the rear of the hall warning the members for being so "unfair," but the repeating went on.

As the members, each with a few camp stools in his desk, continued filling up the floor in the hall before noon, the St. Joseph band played. At the "Star Spangled Banner" was rendered, the assembly stood up and there was so much waving of little flags that a false alarm of Hadley's arrival was caused.

Women, many of them with costly furs over their shoulders, formed fully one-half of the floor crowd from members of the Legislature.

Historic House Demolished.
The house where Benjamin Franklin first set up his lightning conductor at Passy has been handed over to the housewreckers for demolition. It has a plaque which commemorates its history and says: "This has been carefully removed, and will be replaced by the new building which will take the place of the old. It may be seen in the new building which is now being erected by the American Ambassador to Paris in 1912."

SPAIN'S QUEEN HIT BY BULLET WHILE ON HUNTING TRIP

Mystery in Wounding of Victoria, Who Strayed From Rest of Party.

VIENNA, Jan. 11.—Queen Victoria of Spain was mysteriously shot in the forehead during her recent visit with King Alfonso to the hunting lodge of Archduke Frederick, according to a story printed in the Neue Wiener Journal today.

Queen Victoria strayed away from the rest of the party. A short time later the King and the Archduke heard a sharp outcry. They found the Queen lying on the ground, a bullet wound in her forehead. The bullet had just grazed the skin and she was bleeding freely. The Queen with her head bandaged, resumed her part in the game.

Twenty-one men were killed in an explosion of gas early Sunday morning in the mine of the Zeigler Coal Co., at Zeigler, Ill. This mine is owned by Joseph Leiter of Chicago. The cause of the explosion is unknown. The management says that every man in the mine had a safety lamp, there was no fire in the mine or machinery that would cause a spark. Each of the miners had been searched for matches before he entered the mine. There were 24 men at work in the mine when the explosion occurred. All but three of them were killed. The bodies of the dead were fearfully mangled and torn by the force of the explosion. Even their clothing was torn in shreds.

A young man who escaped death was found after the explosion by the rescuers wandering in the mine and singing and laughing as he walked. He had been crazed by terror. When the explosion occurred he happened to be standing with his back against the wall of a gallery.

He stood there when the blast of the explosion swept past him.

Clothing blown off.
Every light in the mine was put out by the explosion, and when the rescuers went down the 400-foot shaft and began groping their way in the darkness, they had heard the voice of a man singing and gibbering in the blackness ahead of them. When they came to him he was crouched on the bottom of the floor of the gallery and whined with fear. He was almost naked. He did not recover his senses until he was carried up to the mouth of the shaft. Two hundred feet further along the gallery the bodies of three dead men were found. They were mangled, and one of the bodies had the limbs torn off.

Joseph Hubbard says that just one hour before the explosion he went down into the mine with Robert Kerr, one of the men who was killed an hour later. They went to every part of the mine and inspected it. They found everything in good order. There was no odor of gas, there was no fire and no light of any kind except the safety lamps carried by the miners. He says he cannot account for the explosion. After the explosion, he went again into the mine and everything was wrecked.

The force of the explosion had wrecked the scalehouse and pieces of it were swept hundreds of feet along the galleries. The bodies of men killed were blown by the blast several hundred feet. Five of the 24 men in the mine were found alive by the rescuers, but two of them died after they were brought to the surface.

EATING OYSTERS AND CREAM PUFFS FATAL TO WOMAN

Mrs. Josephine Wells, Christian Scientist 15 Years,
Barred Doctors.

For 15 years Mrs. Josephine E. Wells of 412 Cook avenue refused to permit a physician to darken her door. She said that she did not believe in doctors and wouldn't have them around her.

At the end of the 15-year period she died. Dr. Joseph Meinhard made an autopsy and Monday he reported to the coroner that Mrs. Wells had tubercular lungs, hypertrophied heart, gastritis, cirrhosis of the liver, nephritic kidneys, gangrene of the pancreas and peritonitis.

Some of these diseases apparently had existed for years, and all were approaching the stage where they might soon have caused death.

Ate Oysters and Cream Puffs.
Members of Mrs. Wells' family believe that her death Saturday was due to the fact that she ate oysters and cream puffs at the same meal Friday night. "She became ill after supper," said her husband, Charles E. Wells, "but we gave her home remedies. She seemed much better when I went to work Saturday, but when I went home for lunch she was dead."

"I would have called a doctor had I known her condition was serious. I supposed it was just a case of indigestion."

"My wife and I became Christian Scientists 15 years ago, and since then we have never felt the need of medical attention."

The coroner returned a verdict of natural death from peritonitis and pancreatitis.

A Physician's Opinion.
At the inquest Wells testified that his wife had not been robust for several years. At the time of her death she weighed only 98 pounds.

A physician said Monday that oysters and cream puffs eaten together would be indigestible and that acute indigestion might have been the cause of death to a woman in Mrs. Wells' weakened condition.

FAULKNER REGAINS CITIZENSHIP
Just before he surrendered the executive's office to Herbert B. Hadley Monday, Gov. Folk issued a pardon for former Delegate Harry A. Faulkner, who served a penitentiary term for perjury in connection with the Folk boodle crusade.

The pardon has the effect of restoring to Faulkner his right to vote.

TWO FIRES IN HOTEL NEWPORT AT SAME TIME

Flames Discovered Simultaneously on Different Floors of Structure.

Two fires, on different floors and 100 feet apart, broke out mysteriously and simultaneously at 3:45 a. m. Monday in the Newport Hotel, at Seventh and Chestnut streets. They were extinguished without damage to the structure and with the loss of only a few articles of furniture, but the police are investigating the blaze on the statement of Capt. Hains of Engine Co. No. 6, that he detected a strong odor of kerosene in one of the rooms in which fire was found.

The Newport Hotel, which is owned by the firm of Schorr & Koltschneider, has been neglected by them since the discharge of the landlady, Mrs. Kate Baumann, seven weeks ago. Several persons have continued to live in the hotel, but have not paid rent. A Post-Dispatch reporter who went through the hotel found that most of the 48 rooms of the house seemed to have been slept in recently.

Mrs. William H. Brunk, who, with her husband, occupied room 3 on the second floor, smelled smoke and found a blaze in room 3, just across the corridor. Her husband turned in an alarm. The firemen found in room 3 a pile of rags on a chair, another pile on a mantelpiece and still another pile burning in the middle of the floor.

It was in this room that Capt. Hains declared he smelled kerosene. When this blaze was put out, the firemen smelled smoke in the building, and followed it to room 3 on the third floor, 100 feet from the first fire. There they found smoke and fire pouring out of the drawers of a chiffonier. The fire was easily extinguished.

BLACK FLAG UP AS STAGE WINE KILLS ACTOR

Sinister Signal Floated From School Where Amateur Player's Sweetheart Taught.

MARYDEL, Md., Jan. 11.—Poisoned by "stage wine," Charles L. Pippin died Sunday. Pippin, 25 years old, was one of the amateur actors in a New Year's night performance of "The Only Girl," which the whole village attended.

It was a virulent poison that killed Pippin. This wine came from the home of a relative, S. H. Pippin, and was supposed to be nothing more than huckleberry wine, half diluted.

A motive for poisoning Charles Pippin is not known. Some think that a rejected suitor of Miss Maude Hummer, a teacher in the village school, to whom Pippin was engaged, was driven by jealousy to murder Pippin. This theory is supported by the fact that on the day after New Year a black flag was hoisted over the little school house where Miss Hummer presides.

Everybody laughed at first, at the idea that "stage wine" could affect anyone seriously, and it was supposed that Miss Hummer hoisted the black flag to add zest to the "joke." But she declares now that while she laughed about her sweetheart's supposed illness, she doesn't know who raised the flag. She was devoted to him when she learned he was really ill and he breathed his last in her arms.

Another theory is that someone sought to supplant Pippin in his business, which was that of an undertaker. The idea of an undertaker starting in business by burying his former rival strikes Marydel as somewhat ghastly. Still another theory is that the poison was intended for another young man who was in the cast of "The Only Girl."

CAPTIVE IN RIG BREAKS GLASS TO STOP HORSE

E. St. Louis Physician Whirled
Seven Blocks by Runaway Animal.

Imprisoned in a glass-enclosed buggy, Dr. A. C. Housch of East St. Louis Sunday night rode seven blocks behind a runaway horse. He then broke a glass door with his fist, climbed on top of the rig and stopped the frenzied animal.

Dr. Housch had been in a hospital two weeks and had just been released with a warning from his physician that he must not exert himself.

He had to disobey this order to save his life in the runaway.

The horse, after the two weeks' vacation, was unusually spirited when the doctor started out to make a call. The buggy was fitted with a "ventriloquist" attachment to keep out the cold.

As Dr. Housch was about to step in the horse started. He had one foot on the step and the sudden jolt threw him headlong into the rig.

He reached for the lines, but found that they had been jerked through the slot in the vestibule sash and he could not get at them.

From Dr. Housch's office, at Fifth street and Missouri avenue, the horse madly dashed to Seventh street and Ohio avenue—seven blocks through the busy downtown streets of East St. Louis. Here the wheels struck the curb and the buggy was overturned. The horse continued to run.

Dr. Housch, imprisoned inside, was bumped over the granite for nearly a block before he broke the glass with his fist.

Climbing to the uppermost side of the overturned buggy, he clung there with one hand and, leaning far over, caught the lines with the other and stopped the horse.

His hand was cut by the glass and he was severely bruised.

BOTH SIDES REST IN THE HAINS TRIAL

Lawyers' Arguments to Jury
Expected to Consume
Two Days.

FLUSHING, N. Y., Jan. 11.—Both the people and the defense rested today in the trial of Thornton J. Hains, charged as an accessory to the murder of William E. Anna here. Argument probably will take up two days.

Few questions were asked after court convened.

Leo Bug, the real estate dealer recalled, said he never told the defendant that he could be found any Saturday at the Bayview Yacht Club.

Andrew Delfeyette, a waiter, said that he did not see John Tierney, the ash collector, at the club.

Upon the verdict in the case depends the course to be taken with Capt. Hains, now awaiting trial for murder. Should Thornton be found guilty, it is generally regarded here a commission will be asked for to determine the sanity of the army officer; but in the event of an acquittal for Thornton, the case of Capt. Hains will undoubtedly come to trial and his defense will be temporary insanity.

YANKEE SAILORS DIG FOR BODIES OF THE CHENEYS

Admiral Sperry on Flagship
"Connecticut" Reaches Messina.

BY JAMES E. NORTON.
(Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.)
MESSINA, Sicily, Jan. 9.—Admiral Sperry's flagship, the battleship Connecticut, entered Messina Harbor this morning. Ports and warships received her silently, as befitted such a mournful occasion.

Ambassador Griscom arrived here on the American relief ship Bayern, which flew the Red Cross flag. The Ambassador and the Admiral exchanged official courtesies, then landed and went to the ruins of the building in which was the American consulate.

Forty American sailors—as many as can work advantageously—are excavating in the ruins of the consulate today. They unearthed the body of a woman, which is nearly unrecognizable, but which is not that of Mrs. Cheney, the Consul's wife.

The body of Mrs. Ogston, wife of the British Vice-Consul, was recovered this morning; that of their child has not been found yet. Mr. Ogston, whose leg is broken, is at Palermo. His wife was at his side and the child was following them to the street when the walls of the British consulate fell.

Distribute Money and Food.
Ambassador Griscom gave money and some of the food and clothing the Bayern brought to the Archbishop of Messina.

The military authorities do not approve of foreigners directly distributing the stores and clothing they bring.

The American battleships Vermont, Kansas and Minnesota passed through Messina Strait today on the way to Naples. The white squadron presented a beautiful spectacle as it sailed at a little distance from the ruined city.

The Connecticut will follow the others of the division to Naples tonight. Ambassador Griscom will go on her and will present Admiral Sperry and his officers to King Victor Emmanuel.

The British cruiser Lancaster arrived this afternoon and anchored close to the Connecticut.

Earthquake shocks continue. Two yesterday shook down some of the few walls that had remained standing.

What Postum has done for thousands in health-profit it will do for you.

4 STATES WILL CONSIDER TAX ON BACHELORS

Missouri Legislature Probably Will Vote on Once Rejected Kinney Bill.

MUST PROPOSE YEARLY

Texas Measure Will Spur on Single Man Till He Surrenders.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 11.—At the last session of the Legislature Senator Thomas Kinney introduced a bill providing for the taxing of bachelors $50 per year and the creation of a State Matrimonial Board, to be composed of five bachelors and five spinsters. Senator Kinney's bill failed of passage, but having been re-elected, he will probably reintroduce the measure this session. A bachelor tax, it is estimated, would yield the State $300,000 annually.

AUSTIN, Tex., Jan. 11.—A graduated scale of taxes on bachelors is provided in a bill which Senator Claude Hudspeth will introduce in the Legislature. The minimum tax is $10 per annum on bachelors 25 to 30 years old. Bachelors 30 to 40 years old must pay $25. From 40 to 50 the rate is only $10. All bachelors of 50 and over are exempt. The bill also provides that each eligible bachelor shall propose to at least one woman each year. Failure to make affidavit that he has done this and has been rejected, subjects the bachelor to a double tax.

It is also provided that in the ranch territory, where marriageable women are scarce a bachelor may obtain exemption from the tax upon making affidavit that he could not find anyone in his county to whom to make marital overtures. It is estimated that there are not less than 10,000 bachelors in Texas who would be subject to the new law.

Bureau in Wisconsin Plan. MILWAUKEE, Wis., Jan. 11.—Assemblyman John T. Farrell of this city will introduce a bill in the Legislature taxing all bachelors of 30 years or more. A feature of his plan is the organization of a State bureau for the finding of wives for bachelors who wish to avoid the tax.

"There are many people who want to get married," said Farrell, "but they don't know how to go about it. I have provided a satisfactory manner of solving the problem. With a little assistance, they would be able to find the proper partners, and the State matrimonial bureau would do away with the curse of the private bureau."

"Under proper supervision of marriages we would have fewer divorces. All persons contemplating matrimony according to my law, will have to subscribe their names in a public book 30 days before the date, and this would prevent elopements which precede most divorces."

"This may be freak legislation, but the day is coming when no State will permit the marriage of two persons entirely ignorant of each other's nates."

Fund for Iowa Spinsters. DES MOINES, Ia., Jan. 11.—Soon after the General Assembly, which opens today, gets under way, a bill providing for the taxation of bachelors will be introduced by Representative Fred Hunter of Des Moines. It will be directed particularly at Senator O. C. Dowell of Polk, a prominent lawyer and bachelor, whose avoidance of the matrimonial yoke has been the subject of jest throughout his many years of service in the Iowa Legislature.

Senator Dowell probably will be the chief opponent of the bill. Representative Hunter's proposed act will provide for the levying of a tax of $5 annually upon all single men over 30. The proceeds thus derived will go into a separate county fund, to be disbursed to needy spinsters and widows.

While it was Hunter's intention to tax single women who shunned marriage, he has decided that the blame for the increasing number of single men and women rests principally with the men.

FIREMAN TAKES MOTORMAN'S COAT, HITS HIM WHEN CAUGHT

Police Say City Employee Charged With Larceny and Assault Was Drinking.

Reginald McGinnis, motorman on the Hadamont line, did not miss his overcoat from the stool on the front platform of his car until a passenger called his attention to the fact that a man in a fireman's uniform had grabbed it and jumped from the car.

McGinnis applied the brakes and ran three blocks before he caught up with the fireman. Then, jerking his overcoat away, he said to the fireman, "I have your number." "You might as well have this, too," said the fireman as he struck McGinnis in the face, knocking the motorman to the ground. Then he kicked the motorman until citizens interfered. The citizens held the fireman for the police.

Capt. Gaffney and several policemen say the fireman was under the influence of an intoxicant when he reached the station at Page and Union boulevards.

The prisoner gave his name as John J. Shaw, 35 years old, and said he is a member of engine company 34, at 244 Vernon avenue. He is held on the double charge of petit larceny and assault.

WOMAN GOES TO MEET NEGRO, IS BURNED TO DEATH

Police Allege She Made Black Husband and Another White Man Jealous.

MARION, Ind., Jan. 11.—Letters in possession of the police indicate, they say, that Frank Brown, mulatto, enamored of Mrs. Martin Hicks, aged 23, white, wife of a respected lumber dealer, became jealous after the woman's infatuation for him waned.

"Under the guise of telling her good-byes, the evidence in the hands of the police shows the negro lured the woman out at midnight. Her body, badly charred, was found in the hay loft of a burning barn four hours later. The negro escaped and a posse is in pursuit today."

Martin Hicks, the husband is still in jail. Levi Sutton, white, also under arrest, is charged by Hicks with being attentive to Mrs. Hicks. He is held on suspicion.

The police say both white men and the negro were all jealous of each other and the woman seemed to delight in urging them to mutual hatred over her attentions to each.

They All Are. From the Cleveland Leader. "Blames my landladyman is away behind the scenes. Paraphrase: Is what way? Blames: In spite of the intensity of the winter, he is still a believer in the shirt waist."

COMMENTS ON CATARRH

Giving Excellent Results for Its Quick Relief and Cure.

The only logical treatment for catarrh is through the blood. A prescription, which has recently proved so wonderfully effective in hospital work is the following: It is an exceedingly simple mixture, but one that will bring quick results and put the system in a normal condition. "One ounce compound syrup of Sarsaparilla; one ounce Tonic compound; half pint first-class whiskey." These to be mixed by shaking well in a bottle, and used in tablespoon doses before each meal and at bedtime. The ingredients can be gotten from any well-stocked drug store, and easily mixed at home. A bottle of this medicine chest on account of the manifold ills that it will cure, being a perfect tonic and system builder, the good results are felt after the first few doses. . . .

M'COURTNEY WAS MURDERED SAYS PHONE MESSAGE

Man Who Refuses to Give His Name Notifies Coroner and Chief Creecy.

INQUIRY IS REOPENED

Young Man's Family Had Halted Investigation—Verdict of Suicide.

Following the receipt of two mysterious telephone messages, one to the Coroner's office and the other to police headquarters, Chief Creecy Monday reopened the investigation of the circumstances surrounding the death of Earle M'Courtney, who was shot to death in his office in the Century Building Friday night.

Half an hour after a verdict of suicide was returned a man who refused to give his name called the Coroner's office and said: "I believe M'Courtney was murdered. I overheard a conversation between two young men after he was shot. They were members of a club that M'Courtney had had trouble with near the levee and Franklin avenue. They had threatened to kill him and I believe they did."

Clerk Koels gave the man the number of Chief Creecy's telephone and a few minutes later the Chief received the same message.

Capt. Young of the Central District says that he will follow the tip, though he believes that M'Courtney committed suicide. He sent two detectives to investigate.

Family Holds Inquiry. Only two witnesses were heard at the inquest Monday. Special Officer Kennedy of the Central District testified that he had investigated a statement that M'Courtney quarreled with a young man in the Frisco Building Cafe a short time before his death.

"I went out to the M'Courtney house and they told me they didn't want it investigated any further and that they believed M'Courtney killed himself," he testified.

"And you dropped it there?" asked Dr. Carriere.

"Yes. Do you think I ought to investigate it further?" "That is a matter for the Police Department and the grand jury to consider," said Dr. Carriere. "I am here merely to take the statements of such witnesses as are brought before me. It is not my province to investigate further. I shall have to wind up this inquest now with a verdict of suicide."

Letter Mystery Cleared. H. C. Howard, night watchman, testified that he did not see anyone visit M'Courtney at the building the night of his death.

Miss Marjorie Sampson, sister of Miss Helen Sampson, daughter of the late Clark H. Sampson, cleared the mystery of the "Helen" letters Monday. "They were written to Earle M'Courtney by my sister, Helen, who was engaged to marry Mr. M'Courtney," she said.

The four orphan daughters of Mr. Sampson live at the Wanda Apartments, 3714 Van Vorst avenue. Miss Helen Sampson is prostrated there and her physician will not permit visitors to see her.

"Though I believe that a statement will be made, it will not come from my sister," said Marjorie. "We are convinced that Mr. M'Courtney committed suicide. Just why he did it we do not know. We all liked him very much. There was no objection to the match and he was on the best of terms with Helen."

ADmits RECORD AS THIEF IN VOTE FRAUD HEARING

Sanders, Trying to Live Down Past, Tells of Guilty Plea.

Like the story of Jean Val Jean was the statement made by Frank Sanders of 1534 Morgan street, who was arraigned before Judge Shields on a charge of fraudulent registration Monday after he had been a prisoner in jail awaiting trial for 72 days.

Sanders registered at the Fifth Precinct of the Fifteenth Ward in his own name. But some one who knew his history gave information that he had once been sentenced for petty larceny. "Yes," he said to Judge Shields, "I did plead guilty to petty larceny when I was 15, nine years ago, in Illinois. I was sent to the Reformatory, but was too old for admittance and paroled. I was discharged from parole and came to St. Louis. I reformed, married and have lived straight. I didn't think I was doing wrong to register."

Judge Shields said he was inclined to show all the leniency possible and Sanders was sent back to jail to give the judges an opportunity to look up the law on the question.

TILLMAN DENIES WRONGDOING; "ROOSEVELT HATES ME"

Charges His Papers Were Stolen by Sleuths on President's Orders.

mind that so far from endeavoring to justify the fraud order against Dorr, they were really put to work to investigate me and endeavor if possible to discover something to my discredit while the President directed the investigation. I say this because it is hardly possible that a Postoffice inspector would set about getting photographic copies of the letters of a United States Senator and trying to convict him of lying if the orders did not come from a high source.

"Let us suppose for a moment that I was guilty of a falsehood in declaring that I had not undertaken to purchase any land. What did that have to do with Dorr's transparent and open use of money to purchase land? Dorr's declaration that I had paid the fees in an absolute falsehood and the Postoffice inspectors, while they searched the records for entries at Coquille, noted that Reeder and Watkins had filed several hundred applications, but nowhere mentioned that any had been filed in my name or for me. Therefore, the falsehood is proven on Dorr and yet the President declared the assault which Senator Tillman made on Mr. Dorr was according to the report of the inspectors, a wanton assault made to cover up Senator Tillman's own transactions.

Accuses Roosevelt of Falsehood.
"No such statement was made by the inspectors. In fact, so earnestly intent on convicting Senator Tillman is the President, that he actually commits himself to this proposition, to-wit: Tillman voluntarily and without any compulsion from any source and with nothing to conceal, brought up a matter in the Senate which he need not have done to cover up transactions which were absolutely honest and in full view of the public. Tillman, voluntarily and without any compulsion from any source and with nothing to conceal, brought up a matter in the Senate which he need not have done to cover up transactions which were absolutely honest and in full view of the public. Tillman, voluntarily and without any compulsion from any source and with nothing to conceal, brought up a matter in the Senate which he need not have done to cover up transactions which were absolutely honest and in full view of the public.

"Now about the lying: My letter of Feb. 15, of which the President has secured a photographic copy, antedated by four days my statement in the Senate that I had not bought any land or undertaken to buy any, and the President considers this positive proof of the falsehoods.

"I did not say I had not considered the purchase of land; I did not say I had not contemplated the purchase of land, because I had done both.

"In my conversation with the Attorney-General in regard to the resolution which I introduced and which he himself prepared after we had talked over the whole land situation, I distinctly remember telling him that my interest in the matter had been first aroused by my desire to purchase some of the timber land and that my coming to him was due to the fact that I discovered upon investigation that I could not buy it through any agency whatever; that I could not buy it even by law suit, because I was advised by very able lawyers in the West, among them the Hon. George Turner of Washington, that in attacking the holders of those land grants no one would have any standing in buying some land. Not at all. Did I mean to attack Dorr as a swindler when I myself was engaged in a dishonest and dishonorable transaction? That is what the President would have people believe.

The Meaning of "Undertaken."
"I was, perhaps, disingenuous; but a moment's thought will convince any honest-minded man that as I had not signed any papers, had not paid any money, had taken nobody's receipt, the usual processes by which one UNDERTAKES to buy land. I was speaking accurately and not falsely.

"Everything hinges on the word 'undertaken' and my use of it. Did I mean to conceal the fact that I was anxious to buy some land? Not at all. Did I mean to attack Dorr as a swindler when I myself was engaged in a dishonest and dishonorable transaction? That is what the President would have people believe.

"Can I be justly charged with falsehood when, if I had told the Senate of the entire transaction, it would have made no difference whatever, while I would have been charged with having intruded my private affairs into a public discussion? Just what law did I break? What wrong did I do or contemplate? According to the report of the Attorney-General, I introduced a resolution on Jan. 31, calling on the Attorney-General for the information, and the other, which became a law, instructing him to institute suits.

"My official activity is then shown to have taken form in the Senate before I knew anything about Reeder & Watkins' attitude or expectations, and I was in no way influenced by them. Still Anxious to Obtain Land.
"I was still anxious to obtain some of the land, if it could be done legally, wrote Reeder & Watkins to that effect, but my faith in them and in the whole scheme died when I received the circulars of Dorr, which came to Lee on Feb. 17 and 18, from three different directions, showing the widespread circulation of them."

Mr. Lee reported to him, he said, also led him to believe that Reeder & Watkins were not "of the caliber and character" to be employed in a matter of such magnitude.

Says He Exposed a Swindle.
"Dorr, of whom I had never heard before, told me, 'was evidently making his scheme of getting suckers to invest and using my name, as I have indicated, without authority, because I had not paid any fees to him or written to him or filed any applications. I, therefore, felt it incumbent on me to expose the swindle in the Senate, which I did on Feb. 15, and asked the Postoffice Department to issue a fraud order. I pressed the passage of the joint resolution in the Senate and on April 30 it became a law. March 18 I was taken ill and on May 18, after a partial recuperation, I called for Europe, returning Oct. 31.

"The President's sleuths, set to do the dirty work of spying on a Senator when that Senator had exposed a fraud which was being perpetrated on the public, reported to him on July 27, I had nothing to do with the change in the law of which the President complains in regard to the Secret Service. So the President's animus is not against me on the same ground for which he has attacked Messrs. Tawney, Smith and others in the House, but one of personal malice engendered by hatred because of my course in the Senate during the last seven years.

"I have not attempted to deceive anybody; I have not told any falsehoods; I have not broken any laws; I have not been guilty of any immoral conduct; I had the right to purchase the land if I could, but my judgment told me it was unsafe as an investment.

Purchase of Land Still Possible.
"I would like to get some of it yet; and if the Attorney-General and his successors shall not die of old age before anything is done, it may be possible that I may have the opportunity to purchase some of these timber lands, of which he made mention in his report. Through my action attention has been directed in a compelling way to the need of prompt action by the Department of Justice.

"Whether I ever get any of the land or not does not matter if Harrison and others of that ilk are made to disgorge the large holdings which they have stolen and are attempting to hold.

"The President italicizes the words, 'as well as myself,' as though it were unlawful, immoral or improper for a Senator to buy any land or to act in this manner on any question affecting his personal interest. I feel that to see any Senator in this position, but I must submit that to the judgment of the Senate and to the country. I had not become a party to any litigation; I was not interested except as a private individual wanting to purchase, and as a Senator desiring to enable others to have the opportunity to do so. Of course, the President is sure that I have done something very discreditable and outrageous. He hates me and would destroy me if he could.

The Exposure of Dorr.
"The President glosses over the fact that my letter was written just four days before he announced in the Senate that he (D) had not undertaken to buy any land in the West, as clinching his contention that I have lied to the Senate.

"The records show that in the inter-

the passage of the resolution instructing the Attorney-General to bring suit for the recovery of this land for the use of actual settlers, if Mr. Harrison and others like him are made to disgorge by reason of these suits, shall the fact that I was endeavoring to buy a little piece of the land be used as the base of a charge of being a liar and a corrupt Senator—to be dismissed from the Senate?

His Arrangements With Lee.
Senator Tillman then told how his attention had been brought to this land while at Spokane, Wash., in October, 1907. He wrote to Reeder and Watkins, asking for information and telling them of his desire to purchase some of the land if possible.

"Desiring to find out if the conditions of the land grant to the State of Oregon made it possible for 'purchasers' and not 'actual settlers' to buy and hot 'actual settlers' to buy the land, he wired to the Librarian of the Senate for a copy of the act. He met Mr. Lee at Moscow, Idaho, and talked with him on the subject, arranging that he would go to Marshfield and investigate in person. He authorized Lee to draw on him if he found the lands were what they were represented to be.

"Lee's authority as my agent never went beyond an examination of the land, and if the application was filed, to see that I got good timber lands, instead of rocks and marshes," said Mr. Tillman.

Says Papers Were Stolen.
He went into details, explaining his efforts to learn the exact status of the land and get an opinion from Senator Turner of Washington, D. C. After returning to Washington, D. C., in December, he let the matter drop, believing it to be a "very doubtful proposition," until Mr. Lee showed him a letter from Reeder & Watkins, which, Mr. Tillman said, has been stolen from the desk in his committee room along with other papers in this case, and declared the theft was probably by some of the secret service sleuths.

"When Reeder & Watkins," he said, "indicated their desire that I should exert my influence in the Senate, I wrote my letter of Feb. 15, of which the President obtained a photographic copy. In the meantime and before that letter was written, and after a conference with the Attorney-General, I introduced the two resolutions of Jan. 31, calling on the Attorney-General for the information, and the other, which became a law, instructing him to institute suits.

"My official activity is then shown to have taken form in the Senate before I knew anything about Reeder & Watkins' attitude or expectations, and I was in no way influenced by them. Still Anxious to Obtain Land.

"I was still anxious to obtain some of the land, if it could be done legally, wrote Reeder & Watkins to that effect, but my faith in them and in the whole scheme died when I received the circulars of Dorr, which came to Lee on Feb. 17 and 18, from three different directions, showing the widespread circulation of them."

Says He Exposed a Swindle.
"Dorr, of whom I had never heard before, told me, 'was evidently making his scheme of getting suckers to invest and using my name, as I have indicated, without authority, because I had not paid any fees to him or written to him or filed any applications. The Exposure of Dorr.
"The President glosses over the fact that my letter was written just four days before he announced in the Senate that he (D) had not undertaken to buy any land in the West, as clinching his contention that I have lied to the Senate.

"The records show that in the interim, the Dorr circular had been sent to me, for on Feb. 15, when I made the exposure of Dorr, I said in the Senate: 'In the last day or two, I have had my attention called to a scheme of swindling, etc.'

"It is easy for those who are themselves vulnerable to convict others on most flimsy evidence, and the President seems to work on that theory.

Protecting His Own Name.

"On reading Dorr's circular, the whole scheme and combination of swindlers, Reeder & Watkins, in Marshfield, and Dorr, in Portland (I did not know anything about Conro and Shaefer), flashed on my mind, and, remembering Lee's somewhat dubious report as to the character and qualifications of the firm of Reeder & Watkins, I decided at once to see to it that my name should not be used to inveigle others into their game. Hence my action in the Senate.

"The President dismisses with a wave of the hand any possibility of my honesty by saying: 'It is unnecessary to comment on his proposal made in this letter to use his influence as a Senator to force the Government to institute a suit which would make it easy for him personally to obtain some of the land. It might be well to inquire whether of not the Attorney-General has been ordered to obey the law of Congress, passed last April, which I will call the Tillman-Bonaparte law, ordering suit to be instituted for the recovery of these lands.

"My culpability is of such magnitude in contemplating the purchase of 140 acres of land at $2.50 an acre in the eyes of this stickler for official rectitude—in others—that it may be found that he is determined to block my so-called nefarious transactions.

"The man who announces to Congress that he, Theodore Roosevelt, assumed the right to permit the Steel Trust to absorb its greatest rival, contrary to law, would doubtless not hesitate to help his dear friend Harrison in holding two million acres of the public domain because Ben Tillman has contemplated and wanted to buy 1400 acres.

"The President, having convicted

Tillman, proceeded to clear Dorr in both cases contrary to the facts, and smilingly states from the center of the stage which it is his greatest delight to occupy and complacently looks to have the American people and the Senate give their approval of his verdict. I await that verdict calmly and without fear and will gladly abide by it.

Demanding Searching Investigation.
"In conclusion, Mr. President, I court the most searching investigation; nay, I demand it. I declare, most emphatically that I have never sought to conceal my effort to buy land. I spoke to the Attorney-General about it; I explained to the agent of the Secret Service the whole transaction when I gave him the Dorr circular, and the letters which had been sent me containing it.

"The question of motive will at last control and it cannot be shown that I have any reason to conceal anything. I invite comparison of my private life and my public work as a man, and a Senator with Theodore Roosevelt or any other man, and feel absolutely sure of the ground upon which I stand."

MARRIED WOMEN

Every woman covets a shapely, pretty figure, and many of them deplore the loss of their girlish forms after marriage. The bearing of children is often destructive to the mother's shapeliness. All of this can be avoided, however, by the use of Mother's Friend before baby comes, as this great liniment always prepares the body for the strain upon it, and preserves the symmetry of her form. Mother's Friend overcomes all the danger of childbirth, and carries the expectant mother safely through this critical period without pain. It is woman's greatest blessing. Thousands gratefully tell of the benefit and relief derived from the use of this wonderful remedy. Sold by all druggists at $1.00 per bottle. Our little book, telling all about this liniment will be sent free.

THE SECOND WIFE

Another View of Progressive Matrimony, Written for the Post-Dispatch

BY NIKOLA GREELEY-SMITH

THE second wife, like the second book, may be merely a manuscript of one's youth done over after the success of one's first venture, for the memory of a rejected romance may in the rosy light of widowhood assume new life and attractiveness. More often, however, she is a siren unseen and unsung during his late domestic duration.

Thackeray was responsible for the much-quoted assertion that any woman not possessing a lump can become the wife of any man she chooses. I believe this to be actually true of becoming his second wife. It takes energy and finesse to bride a colt for the first time, but once he has been broken to harness you need only display a lump of sugar to see him eat out of your hand and slip his nose under the bridle.

The second wife is apt to be any woman who holds out a lump of sugar in the shape of agreeable flattery to the frisking widower. Sometimes, to be sure, he finds quite an embarrassing number of lumps offered him, and this may occasion a slight delay in his choice.

The process which brings about his doom is so familiar that even he may recognize while he succumbs to it. How pleasant to know, when he considers conferring an idle evening upon her, that there is an eye will mark his coming and grow brighter when he comes. How astonishing to find his favorite books and magazines spread out for him on the library table! How wonderful to have his favorite sweetmeats prepared by her on the chafing dish! How womanly, how conservative and yet inspiring are all her views! How sweetly she takes the spot off his coat lapel, the delicate perfume of the attention deadening his nostril to the fumes of naphtha dispensed by the process! And how tender, how artless, her suggestion that it would be sweet if they could always be cozy and comfortable together.

Women of romantic dispositions have rather an objection to being second wives. How foolish! The fact that a man has been married for ten or fifteen years before their meeting is just so much of a guarantee that he has behaved moderately well during all that period. For has he not had a guardian for just so long?

Moreover, he has had all the advantages of family discipline, and has attained at least to the Third Reader in the wily code of morals and deportment.

A second wife, too, has this tremendous advantage over her predecessor: She can affect openly and publicly to have a mind. It usually takes one marriage—not always the first one, by the way—to teach a man the practical advantages of a brainless wife. But the most remarkable of all the vagaries of progressive matrimony is the strange, unconscious adherence to one type on the part of the man.

A first husband may be little and red-headed, while the second may be a dark and sleek and oily giant. But there is always a certain resemblance between first and second wives. Their eyes may not be alike, nor their noses. One may be five feet tall, the other six; but they will be found to possess, nevertheless, certain qualities in common. Perhaps it is merely a certain childish helplessness. But whatever it may be, the lure persists, surviving the individual woman and bringing him, whenever he meets it, nearer to the haunting Helen of his dreams, that strange combination of priestess, prattler and valet d'echambre that constitutes his ideal of wifehood.

The American Working Girl.

A Harper's Bazar Symposium.

AN ONSENSUS of opinion, appearing from conferences with two 'high-grade' employment agencies, four large commercial houses (not department stores), three large professional offices, and a large number of miscellaneous men of experience in the business world of New York City, says Harper's Bazar, which has been conducting a symposium of working girls' experiences, is that:

Taking education, family training, and influence, and personal qualities and characteristics into consideration in determining what is meant by "the best" of the wages of "the best" women employed in this city as clerks, bookkeepers, cashiers, stenographers, filing clerks, saleswomen, etc.—the following seems to be true:

(1) They (generally) begin at $7 or $8 a week.
 (2) They (generally) take three years to advance to $10 or $12 per week.
 (3) They (generally) take five or six years more to advance to $15 per week.
 (4) Not more than 10 per cent ever go beyond $15 per week.
 (5) Advance in salary is very rare after ten years' service, except with the 10 per cent who develop peculiarly strong characteristics and are advanced to administrative positions.
 (6) It must be remembered that this covers only employees who can properly be classed as "the best." Others begin at $3, $4 and $5 a week and rarely rise above $7 or $8 a week.
 (7) It seems also true that the younger women and the better-equipped women crowd out the older women, as appears from the fact that except among "the best" few remain after thirty or thirty-five years, and even among "the best" few remain after forty or forty-five years.

Coal Chute Problem

THE coal chute problem is solved in two ways by E. K. Buttolph, as follows:

Puzzle Editor Post-Dispatch.
 A chute is discharging coal onto a pile at a uniform rate, and it is reported that 12 men can clear the pile in 10 minutes or 15 men can clear it in 8 minutes. How long will it take five men to clear it?

This Problem of the Coal Handlers clearly shows that, in addition to the coal running from the chute, there is to be handled a pile already accumulated upon the platform at the time the men begin work.

Let x equal this accumulated pile.
 Let y equal flow of the chute during 10 minutes.
 Then, if 12 men can clear the pile in 10 minutes:
 (1) $x + 12y = 120$ (12 men clear the pile in 10 minutes)
 And, if 15 men can clear the pile in 8 minutes:
 (2) $x + 15y = 120$ (15 men clear the pile in 8 minutes)
 Subtracting (2) from (1) in equation (1), we have:
 $3y = 20$
 $y = \frac{20}{3}$
 Substituting y in equation (1), we have:
 $x + 12 \times \frac{20}{3} = 120$
 $x + 80 = 120$
 $x = 40$
 Now, x being the flow of the chute during 10 minutes, the flow for 1 minute equals $\frac{20}{3}$.

Since the second members of equations (1) and (2) are identical, it is evident that the first members are equal; therefore:
 $x + 12y = x + 15y$, and transposing,
 $12y = 15y$
 $12y - 15y = 15y - 15y$
 $-3y = 0$
 $y = 0$
 From the last equation it appears that the original pile discharges from the chute in 0 minutes.

Substituting y for A in equation (1), we have:
 $x + 12 \times \frac{20}{3} = 120$
 $x + 80 = 120$
 $x = 40$
 Now, x being the flow of the chute during 10 minutes, the flow for 1 minute equals $\frac{20}{3}$.

From the last equation it appears that the original pile discharges from the chute in 0 minutes.

Substituting y for A in equation (1), we have:
 $x + 12 \times \frac{20}{3} = 120$
 $x + 80 = 120$
 $x = 40$
 Now, x being the flow of the chute during 10 minutes, the flow for 1 minute equals $\frac{20}{3}$.

From the last equation it appears that the original pile discharges from the chute in 0 minutes.

Substituting y for A in equation (1), we have:
 $x + 12 \times \frac{20}{3} = 120$
 $x + 80 = 120$
 $x = 40$
 Now, x being the flow of the chute during 10 minutes, the flow for 1 minute equals $\frac{20}{3}$.

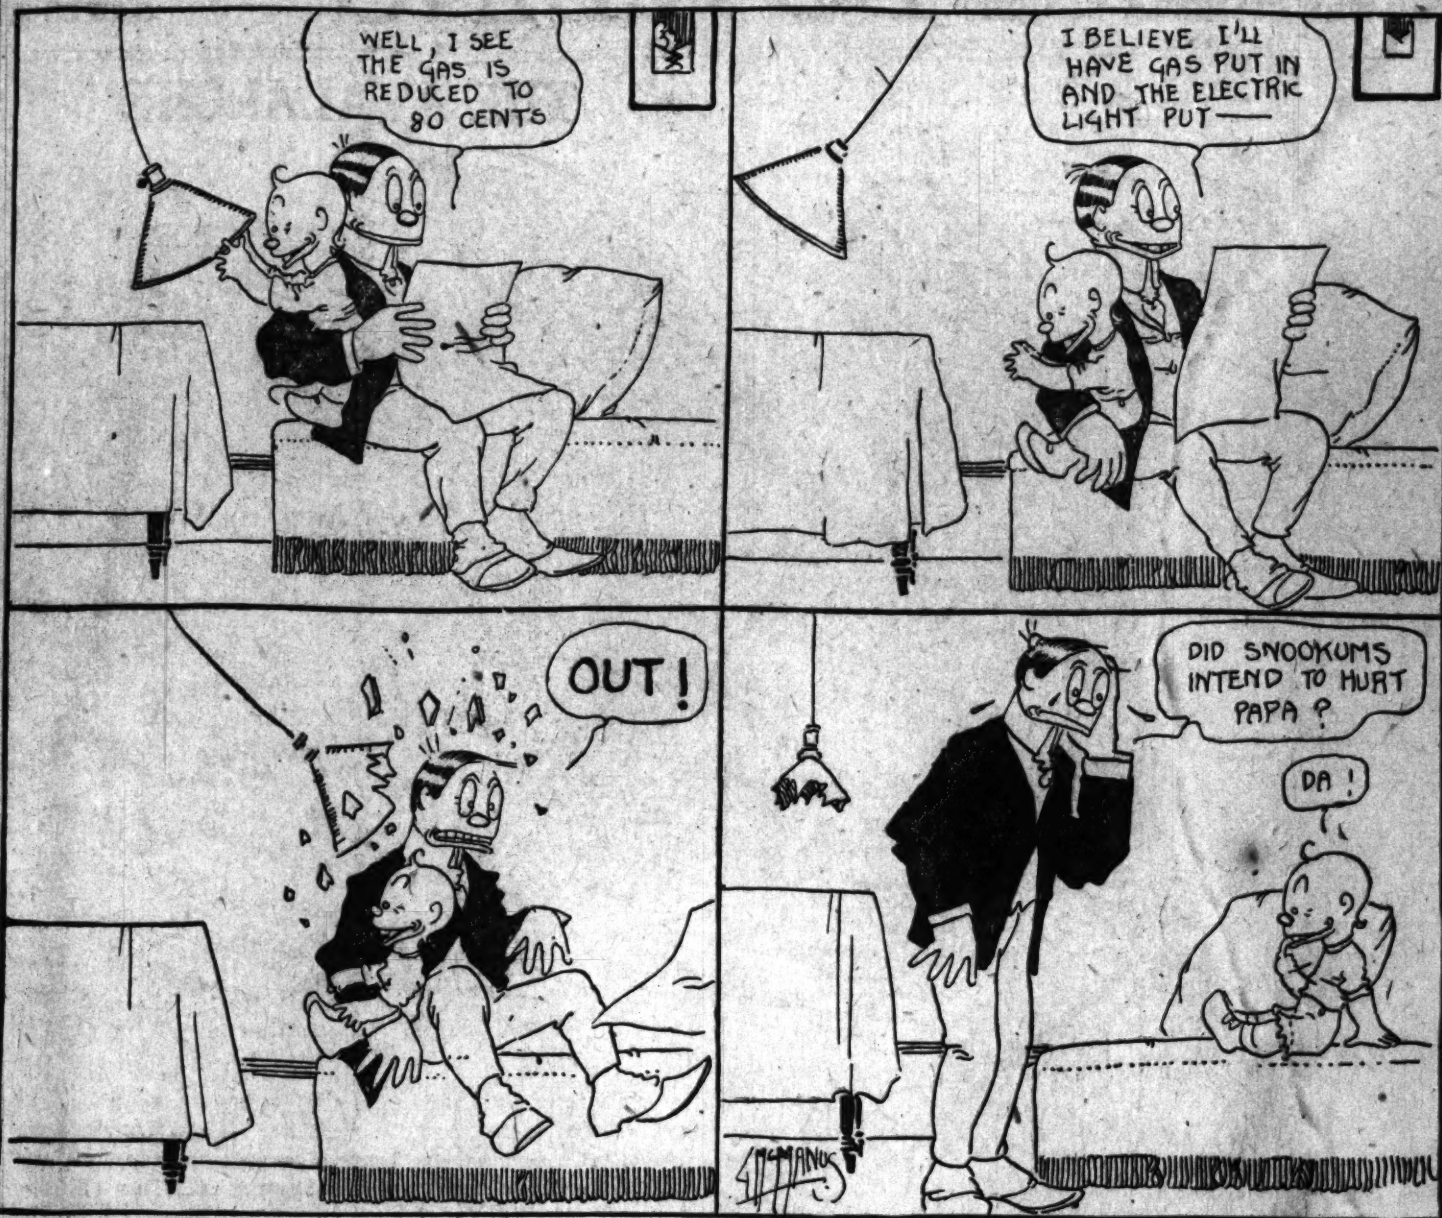

From the last equation it appears that the original pile discharges from the chute in 0 minutes.

Substituting y for A in equation (1), we have:
 $x + 12 \times \frac{20}{3} = 120$
 $x + 80 = 120$
 $x = 40$
 Now, x being the flow of the chute during 10 minutes, the flow for 1 minute equals $\frac{20}{3}$.

From the last equation it appears that the original pile discharges from the chute in 0 minutes.

GOING a step farther in the plan of making benefactions increasingly effective which I took up in the last chapter under the title of "The Difficult Art of Giving," I am tempted to take the opportunity to dwell a little upon the subject of combination in charitable work, which has been something of a hobby with me for many years.

If a combination to do business is effective in saving waste and in getting better results, why is not combination more important in philanthropic work? The general idea of co-operation in giving for education, I have felt, scored a real step in advance when Mr. Andrew Carnegie consented to become a member of the General Education Board. For in accepting a position in this directorate he has, it seems to me, stamped with his approval this vital principle of co-operation in aiding the educational institutions of our country.

I rejoice, as everybody must, in Mr. Carnegie's enthusiasm for using his wealth for the benefit of his less fortunate fellows, and I think his devotion to his adopted land's welfare has set a striking example for all time.

The General Education Board of which Mr. Carnegie has now become a member, is interesting as an example of an organization formed for the purpose of working out, in an orderly and rather scientific way, the problem of helping to stimulate and improve education in all parts of our country. What this organization may eventually accomplish, of course, no one can tell, but surely, under its present board of directors, it will go very far. Here, again, I feel that I may speak frankly and express my personal faith in its success, since I am not a member of the Board, and have never attended a meeting, and the work is all done by others.

There are some other and larger things thought out on careful and broad lines, which I have been studying for many years, and we can see that they are growing into definite shape. It is good to know that there are always unselfish men, of the best caliber, to help in every large philanthropic enterprise.

One of the most satisfactory and stimulating pieces of good fortune that has come to me is the evidence that so ords are open to all. Many benefactors of education are availing themselves of these disinterested inquiries, and it is hoped that more will do so.

A large number of individuals are contributing to the support of educational institutions in our country. To help an inefficient, ill-located, unnecessary school is a waste. I am told by those who have given most careful study to this problem that it is highly probable that enough money has been squandered on unwise educational projects to have built up a national system of higher education adequate to our needs if the money had been properly directed to that end. Many of the good people who bestow their beneficence on education may well give more thought to investigating the character of the enterprises that they are impetioned to help, and this study ought to take into account the kind of people who are responsible for their management, their location, and the facilities supplied by other institutions round about. A thorough examination such as this is generally quite impossible for an individual, and he either declines to give from lack of accurate knowledge, or he may give without due consideration. If, however, this work of inquiry is done, and well done, by the General Education Board, through officers of intelligence, skill and sympathy, trained to the work, an important and needed service is rendered. The walls of sectarian exclusiveness are fast disappearing, as they should, and the best people are standing shoulder to shoulder as they attack the great problems of general uplift.

Fortunately, my children have been as earnest as I, and much more diligent, in carefully and intelligently carrying out the work already begun, and agree with me that at least the same energy and thought should be expended in the proper and effective use of money when acquired as was exerted in the earning of it.

The General Education Board has made, or is making, a careful study of the location, aims, work, resources, administration and educational value, present and prospective, of the institutions of higher learning in the United States. The Board makes its contributions, averaging something like $2,000,000 a year, on the most careful comparative study of needs and opportunities throughout the country. Its records are open to all.

Roman Catholic Charities. JUST here it occurs to me to testify to the fact that the Roman Catholic Church, as I have observed in my experience, has advanced a long way in this direction. I have been surprised to learn how far a given sum of money has gone in the hands of priests and nuns, and how really effective is their use of it. I fully appreciate the splendid service done by other workers in the field, but I have seen the organization of the Roman Church secure better results with a given sum of money than other church organizations are accustomed to secure from the same expenditure. I speak of this merely to point the value of the principle of organization, in which I believe as heartily as any man.

Studying these problems has been a source of the greatest interest to me. My assistants, quite distinct from any board, have an organization of sufficient size to investigate the many requests that come to us. This is done from the office of our committee in New York. For an individual to attempt to keep any close watch of single cases would be impossible. I am called upon to explain this fact many times. To read the hundreds of letters daily received at our office would be beyond the power of any one man, and surely, if the many good people who write would only reflect a little, they must realize that it is impossible for me personally to consider their applications.

The plan that we have worked out, and I hope improved upon year after year, has been the result of experience, and I refer to it now only as one contribution to a general subject which is of such great moment to earnest people; and this must be my excuse for speaking so frankly.

The Appeals That Come. THE reading, sorting and investigating of the hundreds of letters of appeal which are received daily at my office are attended to by a department organized for this purpose. The task is not so difficult as at first it might seem. The letters are, to be sure, of great variety, from all sorts of people in every condition of life, and, indeed, from all parts of the world.

This simple home-made remedy, made by the recipe below, usually conquers a stubborn cough in twenty-four hours. Although inexpensive, nothing more effective could be bought for ten times the cost. It is a splendid thing to have in the house, for if taken when the first symptoms of a cold or cough appear it will enable you to avoid the usual annoyance and suffering. This recipe is worth saving:

Granulated Sugar Syrup..... 13½ oz.
 Pinex..... 2½ oz.
 Take a pint of water, stir and let boil for just a moment. Put the Pinex (50 cents' worth) in a pint bottle and add the Syrup. Shake well, and take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours, as required.

This simple remedy is also excellent for whooping cough, chest pains, hoarseness and similar ailments. Children take it without the usual howl, because the taste is so pleasant. The total cost of a full pint of the mixture is about 54 cents, and will last a whole family a long time.

Use the ingredients as here given. Pinex, being the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway White Pine Extract, is vastly superior to any of the weaker pine oil or pine tar preparations. It is rich in all the natural elements of the pine, which give the very air of the pine forests its remarkable curative power in tuberculosis and other membranous diseases.

If your druggist does not have the real Pinex in stock, he can easily order it for you if you ask him. Granulated Sugar makes the best syrup and is a simple, excellent sedative.

SAYINGS OF MRS. SOLOMON

Being Confessions of the 700th Wife. Translated for the Post-Dispatch

By HELEN ROWLAND

WOULDST thou be a BACHELOR GIRL, my Daughter? For this is THE GREAT FEMININE BLUFF; and no such thing existeth, except in the magazines and the imagination.

Lo, a bachelor girl may be a sweet young thing who assumeth a becoming pose, or she may be an old maid who maketh the best of an unbecoming situation; but a CONFIRMED bachelor girl is one who hath not married—YET.

For the single life is a perfectly lovely thing—in story books. Yea, it is made up of rabbit suppers and High Art and the admiration of the multitude; but in real life it is a back hall bedroom with a GAS stove for company and twenty-five cent table d'hôte for excitement.

Verily, I say unto thee, no woman leeth who would not exchange a typewriter for a cradle, and a desk for a sewing-machine, and an easel for a cook stove, and an armful of diplomas for an armful of babies—and a latch-key for a nice pair of broad shoulders—if the RIGHT man offered them to her.

Yea, observe how easily a lady college professor droppeth her Hebrew and her Greek and learneth to talk baby-talk.

And mark how willingly a lady doctor stetheth rolling pills for the pleasure of rolling a baby carriage.

For ART is a beautiful thing, but it is so intangible. Verily thou canst not put thine arms about its neck; neither canst thou tie it up in pink ribbons. Nay, thou canst not run thy fingers through its hair, nor call it funny nicknames, nor cry upon its coat lapel. Neither canst thou worry about it, nor scold upon it, nor "fuss" over it. Verily, verily a woman must have SOMETHING TO CIDDLE—and a man is better than a teddy bear. Selah!

Reassuring.

 Mrs. Dabington: Edgar, I believe there is a man under the bed.
 Dabington: What of it?
 "But he might come out and shoot me!"

A Little Sermon on Soap

placing affected tissue with sound flesh and fibre, while feeding the skin through its pores.
 Its action is so prompt that it kills the Sting of a Bee in two minutes, stops itching instantly, allays irritation almost immediately, and under these conditions Heals like magic.

For twelve years it has been prescribed, not only for Skin Diseases of the most obstinate types, but for slow Sores that nothing else had healed, for burns, scalds, poison-ivy, and kindred ills. Can you conceive a finer factor to incorporate in a Toilet and Bath Soap?

Soothing, Healing, Antiseptic, and Stimulating to the Skin like an ice-cold Bath.
 Well—that wonderful Skin-Specific is the factor which makes "Resinol" Soap different from all others.

"Resinol," incorporated in the Soap, not only makes it proof against Disease-Germs and their transmission from one person to others by contagion, but it makes it possible to enrich that Soap with Nutrients that would decay without the "Resinol" to preserve and sterilize them.

Bland, Soothing, Stimulating, Antiseptic, and Nutrient without a suggestion of druggy, "disinfectant" odor, or sensation.
 It has the faint fragrance of genuine, old-time Russia Leather.
 Its lather is smooth, creamy, soft and cleansing, leaving a pleasant farewell after its use.

It is delightful for Bath, Toilet, Shaving or Hair-washing, imparting a Satin-like texture to the Skin of Babe or "Full-grown."
 Moreover, it is sure protection against Skin-Disease Contagion. At all druggists. Resinol Chemical Co., Baltimore, Md.

RESINOL SOAP

THEY who can take an ice-cold Bath successfully know the fine, cheering, after-glow which follows it.
 But, that splendid influence on the Skin is impossible to many people whose Heart-action will not permit of it.
 And thus a great Health influence is lost to those who most need it.
 There is, however, a safe substitute for the coldness in the water. That substitute is "Resinol."
 "Resinol" possesses some wonderful characteristics.
 Its first action is Anodyne, bringing "Therapeutic Rest" to the Skin.
 Its next action is control of Hyperemia—or Congestion of Blood in the Small Vessels of the Skin.
 Its third action is Antiseptic, destroying all Bacteria or Disease-Germs in contact with the Skin.
 Its fourth action is that of a powerful Healer and Nutrient, re-

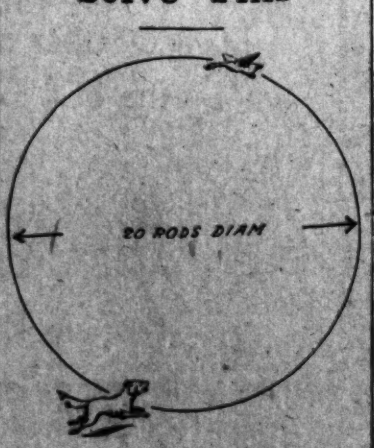

Nearly everybody knows that Ivory Soap is the best of bath soaps.

It is, though; and for the very same reason. It is pure soap; and nothing else.

DORANDO

SMALLWOOD AND DORANDO EAGER FOR THE START

Great Runners in Trim for Marathon Race at the Big Coliseum Tonight.

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

WHEN Dorando Pietri, the Italian runner, and Percy Smallwood, the Welshman, meet over the complete Marathon route tonight at the new Coliseum, St. Louis should see the greatest race ever held in this city. The men are to run 26 miles 385 yards over a dirt track which has about nine laps to the mile. It will be a novelty for St. Louis sport-loving people, and indications are that the big Coliseum will be packed to the doors when the starting gun is first promptly at 8:30.

Marathon racing has become a hobby with American people during the past year. There are enough of the long-distance runners in this country who are ready to undertake the task that one may start a Marathon race almost as easily as a game of poker.

The fellow who first turned the trick, according to the history of Ancient Greece, was one Phidippides, and report says he dropped dead under the wire after handing the message to his country that saved it from the destruction of the enemy. However, the modern Marathon runner seems to have no fear of the fate of "Phid" and is willing and anxious to get in the game. There is no record that Phidippides received any remuneration for his labor except to have his name handed down in the records as a hero while his disciples of today care not so much for the hero worship as the bundle of greenbacks paid for their services.

Dorando and Smallwood are both professional runners. Dorando, as will be remembered, became famous last summer over in London, when he defeated an international field of runners, but was disqualified by the officials, for being helped across the finish line by over-enthusiastic Brits, who would have him beat the American athlete, Johnny Hayes, the latter finishing second without aid. Hayes was awarded the race and then Dorando, after much display in London music halls, came over to this country and defeated Johnny in Madison Square Garden, New York. Later on he ran Tom Longboat, the great Indian runner of this country, at the same place, and was beaten, Dorando tumbling at the finish much as he did in the London race. Only nine days ago he tried another race against Longboat at Buffalo, and, being cramped with pain in the abdomen, he was forced to quit before 19 miles had been completed.

Smallwood a Champion and Does Not Fear the Marathon Distance

DORANDO has never run against Smallwood, who is the champion of Britain at all distances up to 15 miles. Smallwood has never made a reputation at Marathon, as his distance has generally been limited to ten or 12 miles. However, he has often covered 25 and there is no doubt he will be able to do it tonight and make the short Italian wiggle all the way.

Both men have been here for several days training for the event. They did their last work Saturday and their trainers declare they are fit for a great race. Dorando is especially determined to win tonight. His two beatings of Tom Longboat has stirred him up to the highest pitch of eagerness. He must win the race tonight or go back to his Sunny Italy, to work again perhaps in the manufacture of spaghetti, for Dorando was a maker and hawker of the Italian stuff of life before he took up the pastime of Marathon. Indeed, it is said that he learned to run by beating it over the roof of the factory every morning and then jogging back home in the evening.

St. Louis people have seen Marathon races before, but never one indoors, where they can watch the runners from the beginning to the end of the race.

BOWLING

THE AVALANCHE

Chicago Bowlers Victors but Leave Money Here

Windy City Men Win Double and Individual Match, Then Lose in Specials.

While Chicago tenpin bowlers won the two-men and individual matches from the local men on the De Soto Olive alley yesterday afternoon as was generally expected, making two out of three victories for Chicago in regular scheduled contests, the local bowlers arranged special matches afterwards and by defeating the Chicago men managed to break ahead on the side wagers.

No sooner had the Chicago men arrived last Saturday morning than they dropped two matches and some money to local bowlers. George Qualey and Al Jellison defeated Al Toemmel and Dave Woodbury in a two-men match. Qualey later defeated Woodbury in a special match.

The local five had a comparatively easy time in winning the five-men match Saturday night, which was the big event of the series, with a total of 4724 pins to their opponents' 4481. The match was at five games. After the match Saturday night Jellison met Charles Mountain of Chicago in an individual match for a side wager. Jellison lost. He then took on Bob Rolfe and again Jellison went down to defeat.

Jellison is "off" his best game at present. The St. Louis men knew this, but they thought he would be able to pull through in the individual contest Sunday night and the two men contested Sunday afternoon on his nerve. Jules Schmitt, who bowled with Jellison in the two-men event, has also been shooting below his average all season.

In the two men event the Chicago men nominated Mountain and Rolfe as their pair. Both men shot an excellent game and got 3785 pins for 10 games to 3635 for the local pair.

In the evening Jellison dropped the individual match of 15 games to Rolfe. Only 15 games were bowled when it was plain that Jellison was beaten. Rolfe got 3644 pins. Jellison's total was 2777.

St. Louis bowlers then defeated Chicago men in two special matches for side wagers. Jerry Ameling and Martin Kern won a six-game contest from Al Toemmel and Dave Woodbury, 2311 to 2206. Ameling was in fine form and got a total of 1176. Heing Schlenk then opposed Dave Woodbury in a special five-game match. Schlenk sent over 935 pins to 875 for the tall Chicago man.

Local men were more than satisfied with the result of the contests, especially as the local five averaged 944 and 4-5 in the team match Saturday night.

The attendance at the games both Saturday and Sunday was excellent in spite of the fact that the matches were the first for which an admission fee was charged outside of the A. B. C. tournament.

There is now talk of an inter-city match with the best bowlers of Cincinnati. Chicago is also figuring on matches with the Queen City men. Challenges for matches issued by the Chicago men to the Cincinnati men have been accepted and the local men expect to challenge in a few days also. The fact that they were able to defeat the best bowlers in Chicago has given the men great confidence in their ability to shoot an strong game as any five in the country.

MOTORING

By Nelson T. Gutelius.

Ford Company's New Year's Gift.

VERY employee of the Ford Motor Co. whose services extended over a period of 12 months or longer, on Dec. 23 received as a New Year's gift from the company a check for either 5 per cent, or 7 1/2 per cent of his year's salary, at amount depending on the length of service. Every employee who has been with the company one year or more received 5 per cent of his 12 months' salary; if his service covers two years or more, 7 1/2 per cent, and the promise is given that the man who this year comes under the first division, if with the company a year from now, will receive 7 1/2 per cent, while the two-year men will next year come in for an increase over the 7 1/2 per cent.

The following list of hints has been issued by a prominent manufacturer of tires, and motorists will do well to put them into practice:

Do not round curves at too great a speed. It is playing with fate to attempt to round corners on two tires—besides, it is bad for the tires themselves.

See that the wheels always run true. The unequal planes of some wheels will cause unusual strains, which wear out the tires very quickly. Keep away from the curb, as jamming the wheels against the resting stone will often chafe the tires.

See that the wheels are in alignment. Avoid overloading your machine. It is reasonable to assume that the manufacturer has not allowed any great factor of safety in equipping his machine with tires, whereas he may have allowed about 50 per cent more strength than was required in the mechanism, which he is responsible for. Tires will not stand up under a greater strain than they are designed to carry.

Keep all oil or grease away from your tires. See that the garage floors are as clean as possible, and wipe off oil from tires as soon as seen. It is a good precaution to see that all oily rags, cans, syringes, candles, etc., are kept away from the inner tubes in the tool box, or better still, have them in separate oil-proof enamel cloth bags, which are as inexpensive and useful. Keep inner tubes well covered, and keep from warm places.

ACTORS WILL TOUR ABROAD.

What promises to be a most unique "American invasion" of Europe along most friendly lines will be the first tour of the Continent by a train of American-made automobiles. Negotiations begun several weeks ago by Victor Moore with James W. Gilson, sales manager of the Mitchell Motor Car Co. of Racine, Wis., yesterday were closed by the purchase of three Mitchell cars to be used by Mr. Moore and his party on the longest tour of Europe ever attempted by a group of American-made machines.

Three automobiles were included in the order, two 1929 "Thirties," touring bodies, and a "Forty" with a knockdown body. Sales Manager Gilson was instructed to procure special equipment for the automobile train and to spare no reasonable expense.

As planned by the actor, the touring party will include Mrs. Moore, Mr. and Mrs. George M. Coburn, Mr. and Mrs. Sam H. Harris, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Lederer and William Pinkerton. The automobiles will be shipped directly from the Racine factory to Paris, where a complement of expert chauffeurs who know all the prominent touring routes in France, Germany, Italy and other portions of the continent will be engaged.

JOHNSON SAYS MURPHY CAN DISTRIBUTE BONUS

CHICAGO, Jan. 11.—Discussing the offer made by President Murphy of the Chicago National League club to distribute a bonus of $10,000 among the world's championship team on the day that the league pennant is raised at the West Side grounds, Ben Johnson of the National Commission said today: "Murphy ought to be given the pleasure he seeks. Some way ought to be found for it. I have no doubt that the commission will not enter any violent objection. I don't think there will be any contempt of court proceedings if the bonus is given."

ST. LEOS NOW IN LEAD; ST. TERESAS ARE DEFEATED

By Nelson T. Gutelius.

When the fast St. Teresa team went down to an unexpected defeat at the hands of the West Ends in the first soccer game at Athletic Park yesterday the St. Leos later defeating the Thistles, 4 to 0, and took top place. The St. Leos have for two years been recognized as one of the strongest teams in St. Louis. The fact that Billy Kloss-terman's eleven has been unable to get out in front in the Athletic Park League before has been a big surprise.

The second game was merely a walk-over for the fast St. Leos. Chew was unable to stop four of the fast shots that the St. Leos' forward line kept hammering at him. The St. Leos now have 13 points to 13 for the St. Teresas. The race for the pennant will undoubtedly be between these two teams, as the West Ends are third with seven points.

At Kulaga Park "Rube" Waddell as goal keeper for the Shamrock team was the feature of the show. Both of the leading teams of the league, the Shamrocks and New Teresas, won. The Shamrocks defeated the St. Marks, 3 to 0, the St. Marks finding it impossible to get the ball past Waddell, while the New Teresas defeated the St. Malachys, 2 to 0, also. Waddell really did some phenomenal work in goal for the Shamrocks. He stopped a number of his hard shots and the way he batted the leather out with his feet was great. The Shamrocks are leading the league with 12 points, while the New Teresas have 11.

In the C. B. C. League games, the Hilbertians won from the Holy Rosarys, 1 to 0, and the C. B. C. eleven defeated the St. Marys and Josephs, 4 to 1. The C. B. C. team also won in the Junior League games, defeating the St. Marks, 1 to 0, while the St. Teresas defeated the St. Matthews, 3 to 0. In the third game of the afternoon the Holy Rosarys won from the St. Anns, 3 to 0.

The Perpetuals and St. Thomas teams won in the Junior Parochial League. The Perpetuals defeated the Immaculates, 1 to 0, while the St. Thomases defeated the St. Malachys, 3 to 0.

ENTRY LIST FOR MIDDLE WEST TOURNEY HELD OPEN

Announcement has been made that the entry list for the Middle West Bowling tournament to be held at St. Joseph, Mo., Jan. 23 to Feb. 4, will be open until next Saturday to accommodate local men. The entry list was to have closed Saturday night. Because some of the men who were planning to enter teams for the tournament had not been able to announce their line-ups the delay was asked for. The St. Louis bowlers will depart on a special train for St. Joseph, Mo., a week from Friday night. The first annual tournament of the St. Louis Women's Tenpin Association will be held on the De Soto Olive alleys starting Wednesday evening. The entry list for the tournament will close tonight.

INTERCITY CUE GAMES OPEN IN CHICAGO TODAY

CHICAGO, Jan. 11.—The intercity amateur three-cushion billiard league series will open in Chicago this afternoon when Jordan W. Lambert of St. Louis is expected to oppose James Ellis of Chicago. In the evening it is probable that Dr. Will Campbell of St. Louis will meet Charles F. Mohr, considered one of the stars of the Windy City team. Tom Carter and Tom Rains are the other two St. Louisans in Chicago. They will oppose Chicago men Tuesday afternoon and evening. The Chicago team will go to St. Louis next week and to Kansas City the following week. The games are to be a team contest and if one player is not in good form another man of his team can be substituted at any time. The games in this city will be played at Mussey's Billiard hall.

RECTOR WILL NOT RUN THIS YEAR

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Jan. 11.—At the Delta Psi fraternity house at the University of Virginia, James A. Rector, champion short-distance sprinter of the American cinder path, today once more confirmed the statement sent out during the Christmas holidays from his home at Hot Springs, Ark., that he had retired from the cinder path and would not participate in any of the meets scheduled for the Virginia team this winter and spring.

Upon his return to the university last week, Rector sent in his resignation as captain of the track and field team. The advisory board of the general athletic association has not as yet had any meeting and no action has been taken in the matter.

"I am not going to run this season," said Rector, with great emphasis, "and perhaps never again. I have no plan for the future."

Rector laughed at the story sent out from Memphis last week to the effect that he had received a personal letter from President Roosevelt asking him to run another race with Walker, the South African, when the latter comes to this country this summer. "I received no such letter," said Rector. "It is a fake. There is absolutely no foundation for the story."

Rector was equally amused at the stories in the papers on Friday, Jan. 4, which stated that he had been warned that he could not live two years if he continued in training, and that such an ultimatum had been issued by the doctors here. "My health was never better," said Rector. "My heart is as strong as any man's."

COLLEGE ATHLETE IN FIGHT GAME

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 11.—The biggest boxing event here this week will be when Ed Casey, the former collegian, will make his debut in the ring at the National A. C. next Saturday night. Casey's opponent will be Al Kubiak, the Michigan giant, who has met with great success here. Casey played on the Villanova College eleven last fall. He is a six-footer and when stripped weighs 185 pounds.

Mickey Gannon and young Ernie, whose jabbing abilities have earned for him the title of the "human flash," are booked for the Washington Sporting Club tonight, while Willie Lucas and Fred Buckland will furnish a rival attraction at the West End A. C.

STALEY PLAYS WRIGHT IN REX BILLIARD TOURNEY

Staley and Wright are scheduled to meet in the class A three-cushion billiard tournament match at the Rex this evening. T. Wright and Botto are having a close race for the lead in the tournament, Wright having won six games and lost none, while Botto has won five games and lost none. Wright has registered the high average of the tournament, 78; a run of seven, also made by the same player, is high.

Seufert and Cannon will clash in the three-cushion match at Pesch's this evening. Parker is in the lead in the tournament, with four games won and none lost. Becker and Bieger will furnish the pool match this evening. Matthews, with four games won and none lost, is in the lead, with Martin a close second, with six games won and one lost.

Dalton, with the excellent record of nine victories and no defeats, won the class A three-cushion billiard tournament at the Grand, which closed last week. Robson, Hoffman and Patterson tied for second, with six games won and three lost each.

Hughes is out in front in the Hauser three-cushion tournament, with six games won and one lost. Wolf and Thompson will play this evening. Clinch with seven games won and two lost is leading in the pool-ball tournament at the Royal. Speckles and Hughes play this evening.

Leach Cross to Get Next Whack at the Slugging Fighter "Young Otto"

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—After trying for several months to clinch a match between "Young Otto" and Leach Cross, Manager Billy Gibson of the Fairmont A. C. has engaged them to meet for 10 rounds at the reopening of the club on the night of Jan. 26. They will battle at 135 pounds, weigh in at 3 p. m.

Sailor Burke and Joe Thomas, a California fighter, have been matched to meet for 12 rounds before the New Haven (Conn.) A. C. on Jan. 26. They fought a great 12-round fight before the Army A. C. of Boston a few months ago, Burke getting the decision. Thomas claims he should have been given a draw and expects to beat Burke this time.

Harry Gilmore, manager of Packey McFarland, today signed articles at Los Angeles, calling for a 20-round bout between McFarland and "Young Otto" of this city, to take place before the Jeffries A. C. Feb. 8. Gilmore posted a forfeit of $1000, to go for weight and appearance and later as a side bet. The weight will be 135 pounds at 3 p. m. Here is a chance for Otto to fight a good man.

Matchmaker Tom McCarey of the Pacific A. C. of Los Angeles has matched

There is no longer any doubt that Willis Britt, manager of Battling Nelson, has also taken Stanley Ketchel under his management. Jimmy Croftro wired Ketchel an offer of a $20,000 purse to meet Jack Johnson in a 45-round battle on the afternoon of July 4 and a telegram over, immediately wired Croftro accepting the offer for Ketchel.

The proposed 12-round bout between Bert Keyes and "Young Otto" at the New Haven A. C. on Jan. 26 has fallen through.

Tommy Carey, the Quaker City fighter, who did so well against Willie Mangos on last Friday night, has been secured to meet Battling Hurley for 10 rounds at the Sharkey A. C. on Wednesday night. Johnny Dwyer, who fought Hurley 30 days ago, hurt his hands and Manager Buckley, after seeing Carey box Mangos, engaged him to take on Hurley.

CHICAGO HOCKEY TEAM DELAYS COMING HERE

Manager J. C. Meyers of the Auditorium ice rink announced that the inter-city hockey match with the All-Chicago team has been postponed. Meyers received a letter from Joe Brady, the Chicago representative, stating that several of his players have disappointed him and that he would not be able to bring down a strong team for Jan. 15 and 16. If an agreement can be made, the series will likely be played the latter part of the month.

With the Chicago games called off for Jan. 15 and 16, Meyers will go after the Milwaukee team which recently wrote asking for a series.

S.S.S. RIDES THE SYSTEM OF CATARRH

Catarrh is a blood disease which causes a general inflammation of the inner linings or mucous membranes of the body. The diseased of these delicate surfaces and tissues produces all the well known symptoms of the trouble, such as ringing noises in the head and ears, tight, stuffy feeling in the nose, pains above the eyes, irritation of the throat, sometimes slight fever, and a general feeling of weakness and ill health. Even the lungs become affected by the continual passage of impure blood through them, and there is danger of consumption if the disease is allowed to remain in the system. S. S. S. cures Catarrh because it purifies the blood. It goes into the circulation and removes every particle of the catarrhal matter, making this vital fluid pure, rich and healthy. Thus the inflamed membranes begin to heal, every symptom disappears, the constitution is built up and health restored. S. S. S. ride the system of catarrh by attacking the trouble at its head and entirely removing the cause from the blood, thus making a permanent and lasting cure. S. S. S. is made entirely from health-giving roots, herbs and bark, and for this reason is an especially safe and desirable medicine. Book on Catarrh and any medical advice free to all who write.

MOVEMENTS ARE IRREGULAR ON
N. Y. EXCHANGEMarket Closes Around Parity
After Rather Weak
Opening.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11, 12:30 p. m.—There was a somewhat irregular movement in the market during the forenoon hours. In the early trading sharp reactions were registered in many of the prominent issues, but there was a partial recovery by noon. Although advances were recorded in about a dozen stocks, the general trend of prices was downward. Amalgamated and Consolidated Gas moved up 1/4 point.

In the rail section Atchafalpa, B. & O. and Great Northern declined 1/4 each; St. Paul, Northern Pacific and Washburn preferred 1/4 each; Missouri Pacific, New York Central and Reading 1/4 each; Rock Island preferred 1/4, and Illinois Central 1/4 point.

St. Paul, Northern Pacific and the Harriman Pacific advanced 1/4 each, and Interboro-Metropolitan gained 1/4 point. Trading was of a lively character, the total volume to noon amounting to 567,700 shares.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11, 10 a. m.—The stock market opened today with the same bearish tendencies that were in evidence at the close of the market Saturday.

Almost the entire list started under. The only prominent exceptions were Amalgamated Copper, 1/4 up, Rock Island preferred 1/4, and Colorado Southern second preferred 1/4 and Consolidated Gas 1/4 point up. Lead and Steel came down 1/4 point each. Steel was the smallest fraction under.

Amalgamated and Consolidated Gas moved up 1/4 point. Lead and Steel came down 1/4 point each. Steel was the smallest fraction under. Amalgamated and Consolidated Gas moved up 1/4 point. Lead and Steel came down 1/4 point each. Steel was the smallest fraction under.

In the rail division B. & O. and Reading declined 1/4 each. Atchafalpa, Pennsylvania, Great Northern, Illinois Central, Rock Island preferred and Union Pacific 1/4, B. R. T., St. Paul, N. Y. Central and Southern Pacific 1/4 each. Missouri Pacific, Northern Pacific and Washburn preferred were at parity.

At the end of the first half-hour the trend of the market was sharply higher. Union Pacific, Reading and New York Central had advanced 1/4 each, St. Paul, Pennsylvania, B. & O. and Rock Island preferred 1/4, B. R. T., Northern Pacific 1/4, and Colorado Southern second preferred 1/4 point. Interboro-Metropolitan, which lost 1/4 on its initial sale, was also strong, gaining 1/4 point. Smelting advanced fractionally, but almost all the other industrials suffered slight losses in the early trading.

American stocks in London were heavy, being from 1/4 to 1/2 below parity.

Benefits and Then Would Not Work.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 4.—Six children of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fichner, 1008 Winton street have died in 13 years, some of them passing away suddenly, so when Mrs. Fichner was seized with violent pains after drinking a glass of wine given by her husband, she accused him of trying to poison her. She repeated this accusation to the Fourth and Snyder Avenue Police Station before Magistrate Hughes, where Fichner stood as a prisoner.

It was intimated by the wife that inasmuch as all of the children were insured, and that Fichner drew the death payments, he had hastened their going to an indictment to which the husband entered an angry denial. He said they died of natural causes.

Magistrate Hughes was inclined at first to regard the arrest of Fichner as the outgrowth of a family quarrel, but when Dr. George Mills of 14 McKean street testified that he found Mrs. Fichner suffering with symptoms of arsenical poison, it was decided to hold the defendant for a further hearing to give the police time to investigate the wife's story.

Flohner, who is 51 years old, is of his husband. His employers speak well of his conduct and discredit the allegation that he tried to poison members of his family.

Mrs. Fiechner came to this city from Haddon Heights, N. J., where a daughter, Barbara, 7 years old, died a year ago after a short illness. After the funeral Mrs. Fiechner had her husband arrested on the charge of administering poison to their daughter, but without success.

"Almost from the beginning of my married life," said Mrs. Fiechner, "my husband would work only by fits and starts. He had all of the children whose ages ranged from 13 to 29, insured their lives and collected the claims, but would not work until he had spent all of the money.

Only Child is Ill.

"Now all of our children except Charles, are gone, and he is sick, and when I was taken ill so suddenly, after drinking the wine, I could not rid myself of the belief that he was trying to get rid of both of us. He has always acted suspiciously, has threatened me various times and I had him arrested as a matter of protection to myself and son."

Mrs. Fiechner declared that at his request the police of Camden had investigated the matter, but that by his wife's words they lived in New Jersey, and had found them groundless. Mrs. Fiechner is said to be a student of Christian Science and her husband ascribes her motive for charging him with crime as simply to get rid of him and his pain.

A Policeman Thomas of the 10th Avenue Station found a bottle of liquid in the Fiechner house, and this was sent to the city laboratory by Capt. Gallagher to be analyzed. It is said to be some medicine that had been prescribed for her sick son.

NO FALL NOTHING TO HORSE

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Jan. 9.—After a turbulent turtle down a 25-foot wagonment with an express wagon, a horse and driver were killed in a smashup with a heavy freight car.

George Wagner, an express driver, and Troy Hill, scrambled to his feet and unconcernedly kept on walking until Wagner, who had been left far behind, caught him after a merry chase along Nickel street.

The horse, a bay, was about 30 degrees. One side and several wheels of the wagon were badly dislocated.
